

From outdated databases to professional matter management with Knowliah

In the evolving landscape of legal tech, more and more corporate legal departments are seeking efficiency enhancements. Global industrial coatings specialist allnex is no exception. To meet this demand, allnex is partnering with Knowliah, a leading SaaS solution for legal departments. Andreas Mestel, General Counsel EMEA at allnex, shares his positive experience implementing Knowliah's technology globally.

Warning: Don't stay stuck in the past!

For two decades, allnex struggled with an outdated, internally developed database. The folder-based system, initially suitable for smaller volumes, became cumbersome as the company grew. This led to labor-intensive processes, requiring assistance from various departments. Uploading and retrieving data were inefficient, hindering the legal department's effectiveness.

Access to data is crucial for efficient Matter management as it empowers informed decision-making, enhances collaboration, and ensures a streamlined legal workflow.

To address these challenges, allnex sought a modern software database solution to:

- enhance user acceptance
- streamline tasks
- ensure compatibility with IT architecture - while prioritizing data security

Surfing beyond the wave of matters instead of behind

Andreas Mestel from allnex found Knowliah's Legal Matter Management solution and liked it right away. Knowliah's solution met allnex' core needs and stood out for its future-proof software. Why?

- The strong search tool allowed legal professionals to do detailed searches, saving time on basic tasks and making content management smooth.
- The ability to automatically save emails from Outlook impressed the legal team, by making administrative tasks easier.
- Other notable features include a flexible reporting tool and the modularity of Knowliah's product line, leaving room for growth with advanced features like contract drafting, approval management, and e-signature integration.

The modularity of Knowliah's product line allows us to expand considerably and further integrate contract drafting solutions, approval management, and e-signature.
